NRHA PROFESSIONALS OF THE YEAR HONORED FOR 2019

The National Reining Horse Association (NRHA) strives to recognize excellence amongst its members. The NRHA Professionals of the Year awards are just one avenue for showcasing the accomplishments of reining trainers in the industry. The five awards include NRHA Professional Horseman of the Year, Becky Hanson Horsewoman of the Year, NRHA Non Pro Coach of the Year, NRHA Youth Coach of the Year, and NRHA Up-and-Coming Trainer of the Year.

“The Professionals of the Year awards are very important because we have a lot of people in our industry from around the world who deserve to be honored on a national level and recognized by their peers,” said Patrick Flaherty, NRHA Professionals Committee chairman. “These awards aren’t just given to anyone; these recipients have worked hard their entire careers, and it’s evident to their clients and their peers that they’re more than deserving of this recognition.”

Each NRHA affiliate is asked to nominate NRHA Professionals for the awards based on their unrelenting work both inside the arena and out. NRHA Professionals then choose the recipients by voting in each category. Winners will receive their awards during the 2020 NRHA Derby to be held in June in Oklahoma City. Here are the 2020 NRHA Professionals of the Year.

Horseman of the Year—Craig Schmersal

A staple in the industry since competing as a youth member, Craig Schmersal hasn’t missed the NRHA Futurity finals since 1997. His most recent major win came when he was crowned the 2019 Run for a Million co-champion. The NRHA Four Million Dollar rider not only specializes in training, showing, and selling futurity and derby horses, but also breeds prospects that regularly become champions in the arena. He's trained and shown multiple NRHA Futurity and Derby winners, including winning the 2017 NRHA Futurity on his homegrown mare Face The Attitude. He's earned multiple FEI team and individual medals, and multiple AQHA World Championships. He trains every horse as an individual and finds ways to maximize their strengths while minimizing their weaknesses.

Not only is Schmersal known for his contributions within the arena, but outside of it as well. As an active member of the Judge's Committee, Schmersal is committed to the industry and continually trying to better it for horses and riders alike. He is often seen teaching Secrets of Judging courses to increase education for riders, as well. Along with educating in this way, he's also created training videos to help demonstrate techniques for finished horses and futurity prospects and even covers proper tack tips.

Schmersal also promotes NRHA Million Dollar Sire Pale Face Dunit (Gunner x Lena Dun It), who he also showed for most of his career in the show pen, further demonstrating his commitment to each aspect of the reining industry, from breeding to showing, at the highest level.

Becky Hanson Horsewoman of the Year—Abby Mixon

NRHA Professional card, launching her training career under the tutelage of NRHA Four Million Dollar Rider Craig Schmersal. She also worked for NRHA Professional Duane Hicks before moving to Winfield Farms with her husband, Jeff, in 2008.

To date, she's earned more than $391,480 in NRHA Lifetime Earnings and has competed and been a finalist at major events including the NRHA Futurity and NRHA Derby. In 2019, she brought three horses to the NRHA Futurity, making the NRHA Level 4 Open Semifinals on all three and advancing two of them to the NRHA Level 3 Open Futurity Finals. As a top-level female professional, Mixon strives to create more opportunities for women with a desire to compete in the reining industry and promote the sport in any way she can.

Abby Mixon, who's based at Winfield Farms in Marietta, Oklahoma, trains reining horses of all ages and coaches riders of all skill levels. As the daughter of NRHA Professional Don Boyd, Mixon grew up in the reining industry, riding alongside her father. She began showing at age 8, earning more than 330 points, multiple paychecks, and several NRHA top 10 titles as a youth. In 2005, Mixon took her

Non Pro Coach of the Year—Jared Leclair

Jared Leclair began working for Steve Simon at Quarter Mount Farm, home of NRHA Million Dollar Sire Custom Crome, in Paxton, Massachusetts, in 2003. After a year of gaining valuable experience, Leclair was offered an assistant trainer position with NRHA Three Million Dollar Rider, Million Dollar Owner, and Hall of Famer Tim McQuay in Tioga, Texas. Leclair went out on his own and established Leclair Performance Horses in 2007. Leclair currently has an NRHA LTE over $798,000. He also owns and showed stallion Electric Code (Jacs Electric Spark x Hot Coded Candy), which he piloted to earnings over $215,000.

Leclair's non pros are commonly seen at the top of the NRHA Top 10 standings, AQHA World Show standings, and North American Affiliate Championships. Patience, consistency, practice, and perseverance are the main components of his successful training program. Leclair realizes that every horse is unique, and he strives to create a training program to fit their abilities.

Youth Coach of the Year—Mark Guynn

Mark Guynn was born and raised in Manitou Springs, Colorado and graduated from Lamar Community College with an associate's degree in Horse Management and Training. He went on to complete an internship with AQHA breeder and judge Joe Taylor in Moab, Utah. Following his brief sojourn in Utah, Guynn returned to Colorado and started Guynn Training Center.

Guynn actively participates in the Rocky Mountain Quarter Horse Association and is deeply involved in their youth program. Guynn is a past president of the Rocky Mountain Reining Horse Association and remains an active member in his local affiliate. He holds AQHA, NRHA, and NRCHA judge's cards.

Of all his accomplishments, Guynn is most proud of his youth and non pro clients, many of whom have qualified for elite competition themselves. He's coached several AQHYA Honor Roll Champions in both reining and ranch riding, as well as AQHYA World and Reserve World Champions. Perhaps one of Guynn's biggest contributions to the sport of reining lies in his commitment to the Interscholastic Equestrian Association and the development of two successful teams in Colorado, beginning in 2012 with six riders. Guynn currently coaches two teams with a total of 30 riders, alongside professional horse trainers Jimmy Daurio, Nancy Nemmers, and Caylee Parrish.

Up-and-Coming Professional of the Year—Cade McCutcheon

At just 19 years old, Cade McCutcheon is the third generation of his family to become an NRHA Million Dollar Rider. Hailing from Aubrey, Texas, McCutcheon was virtually born on a reiner and learned how to stick with a horse when things got tough at just 6 years old. He debuted in the show pen at 7 years old and competed in the NRHA Non Pro Futurity by age ten. He's the son of NRHA Million Dollar

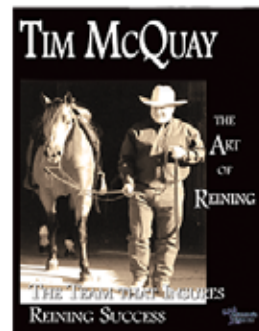

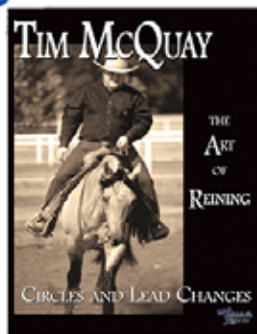

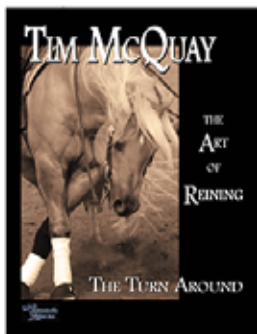

Riders Tom and Mandy McCutcheon and the grandson of multi-million dollar rider Tim McQuay and NRHA Hall-of-amer Collen McQuay. McCutcheon became the youngest U.S. athlete to represent reining at the World Equestrian Games (WEG) on the 2018 U.S. Reining team. McCutcheon helped Team USA clinch the gold during WEG by marking a 229 on Custom Made Gun. WEST COAST REINING HORSE ASSOCIATION YEAR END AWARDS have worked hard and competed all year at WCRHA shows. Before and during dinner, attendees had the opportunity to bid on items at the Silent Auction organized by Kelsey Njus and Britta Jacobson. Monies raised went toward award expenses. After a delicious dinner of short ribs, chicken Marsala, and cheese tortellini, President David Hanson presided over the meeting. Carson Devine and Lauren Hanson were introduced as the 2020 NRHA Youth delegates. Barbi Boyle and Jaimin Kozlowski were welcomed as new directors to the Board.

JoAnn Campas presided over the presentations of Year End awards. Championship and reserve buckles were handed out to the first and second place winners in 24 categories. Silver luggage tags were presented to the third, fourth, and fifth place winners. Embroidered vests, sponsored by 7M Ranch, were presented to all five winners! Thank you to Melinda Gaw for organizing the awards!

There were special honors earned by a couple of members, and The West Coast Reining Horse Association held its 2019 Year End Awards Banquet and general meeting on January 18 at the beautiful, Western-decorated Murieta Hotel and Spa located in Murieta, California. Over 160 members and guests attended this annual event to observe the presentation of awards and offer hearty congratulations to the equestrians who bers, and The Horse of the Year was one of them. This award acknowledges those horses considered “war horses,” “packers,” “steady-Eddys,” etc. who are high WCRHA point earners. The owner of the Horse of the Year is presented with a perpetual

Morrison trophy which was commissioned, and generously donated, by Dick Randall, longtime supporter of the WCRHA. Any horse (no breed or age restrictions) or rider combo is eligible to earn points in any WCRHA approved class. Points go toward the horse, which can be shown by any combination of riders—trainer, non pro, or youth. 2019

WCRHA Horse of the Year Chics Love Chrome

saw Chics Love Chrome, aka “Chromey,” come out on top. Chromey’s owner and sole exhibitor is Trish Eckhoff. He is a 12-year-old gelding by Custom Crome and out of Homecoming Chic. Trish acquired him in April of 2017. Trish was well in the lead for this honor last year, but, mid-year, a broken leg sidelined her for the remainder of that year. This year, she came back with a vengeance and completed her quest. Trish keeps Chromey at home and hauls to her trainers, Mike Boyle, Kim Yancey, and Jason Richards once a week for lessons.

the years. She is an inspiration to us all!”

Marion was also honored as the recipient of the Dick Randall Horseman of the Year award. She was awarded a perpetual trophy as well as a trophy buckle. Marion has been riding since preschool age. She was acknowledged for her dedication to her many horses over the years. At the approaching year of twenty, Custom Coffee, Marion’s current ride, is a testament to her commitment that her horses have healthy and long lives in the show pen. In fact, both their ages combined equals over 100 years! Marion says, “I enjoy showing at reining shows because the people are the best people. They help everybody, no matter who they are!” Like Trisha Eckhoff, Marion keeps and maintains her horse at home. She is currently enjoying lessons at Maya Stessin Performance Horses. Marion insists that her greatest achievement is being able to ride at her age! The way she is going, she is sure to have many more years in the saddle!

Two other very special awards were presented to the same person—Marion Walker. Marion was chosen as the recipient of the Kathryn Cagle “Inspire Me” award. This award is dedicated to the spirit of long-time, WCRHA member Kathryn Cagle. The perpetual trophy and trophy buckle is annually presented by Kathryn’s husband, Rounding out the evening was the presentation of the seven championship saddles, donated by F. D. Thomas, Inc. They were awarded to the following high point earners: Open—Chics Dream ridden by Mike Boyle and owner Betty McHugh, Novice Horse Open L2—Rock N Roll Baby shown by Mike Boyle and owner Pam Hurst, Prime Time Non Pro—Ms Benz shown by owner Britta Jacobson, Novice Horse Non Pro L2 and Youth 14-18—Revolutionic exhibited by owner Megan Lynch, Rookie 2—Coronas In Hollywood shown by owner Laetitia Loubser, and Youth 13 & Under—Bills Sparklindiamond shown by Trevor Skadden and owned by Melanie Skadden. Congratulations to all!

Jake Cagle, and her daughter, Kristen Zuraek. At 82 years old and competitively showing at every WCRHA show on her faithful steed, Custom Coffee, Marion is indeed an “inspiration” to all that age is just a number. Her long-time trainer, Ollie Galligan, relates that “Marion is an amazing person. We have had great horses and celebrations over

All in all, the 2019 Year End Awards Banquet, held in 2020, was a great end to the 2019 show year as well as a great start to the 2020 show year! Attendees were sure to leave inspired to hit the show pen with renewed vigor and dedication to have a super year at the 2020 WCRHA shows!

the only digital magazine on an app entirely dedicated to the sport of reining, its horses and all its protagonists throughout the world

In the March magazine:

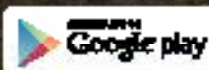

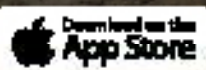

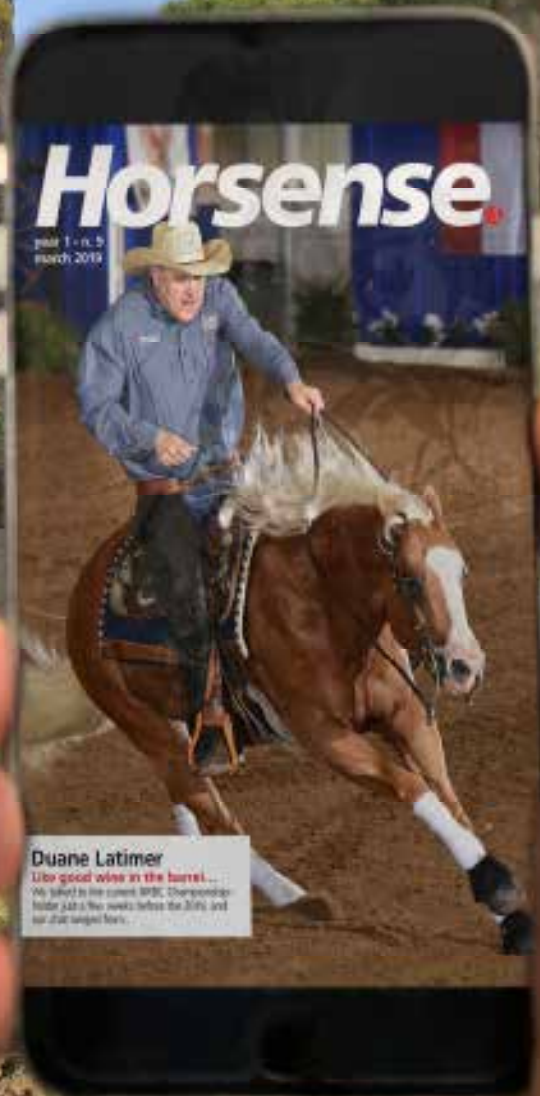

- Our cover trainer of March is Duane Latimer, reigning Champion of the NRBC Open, who we interviewed in the lead-up to the 2019 edition. The Canadian-born trainer talked about his system for teaching the stop and rollback, and how experience is healthy for a trainer to learn how to control his own stress as well as that of his horses and to understand when it is time to stop.

- The 28th of February marked the deadline for presenting the 'non-binding expression of interest' in hosting the next edition of the World Championships in 2022 for the various equestrian disciplines: Italy stepped forward to take pole position in this great challenge, with the splendid facility of Elementa near Roma. At the very same time by coincidence, members of the McCutcheon family (Tom, Mandy and Cade) were present in Roma as guests of Maria Cecilia Fiorucci of Elementa. We chatted with them about the WEG, among other things...

- We present another four-legged star, getting to know more about the beautiful mare Dunit For Chex, owned by Cardinal Raining Horses (Aubrey, Tj) and NRHA Hall of Famer since June 2018. She looks to be the horse that will become the second Million Dollar Dam in history after Ebony Shines.

- A much-appreciated guest in this issue is Doug Allen from Great Britain: a rider and judge at the highest levels, for the readers of Horsense he reveals all the secrets of the freeze-up as seen from the 'chair' as well as answering some more general questions on the work of an NRHA judge.

- Finally, our journey continues among those companies proposing innovative ideas for the sports horse and reining in particular: this time we talk with Gianni Guidolin, of the international feed group that bears this surname. Gianni explains how despite its size it has retained an 'artisan's' vocation.

CADE MCCUTCHEON ADDS TO NRHA MILLION DOLLAR RIDER DYNASTY

At just 19 years old, McCutcheon is the third member of his immediate family to cross this milestone. His parents, Tom and Mandy McCutcheon, reached the milestone consecutively—Tom in 2006 and Mandy in 2007. In 2014, Mandy reached her second milestone, becoming an NRHA Two Million Dollar Rider. Tim McQuay, McCutcheon's grandfather, is an NRHA Three Million Dollar Rider as well as an NRHA Million Dollar Owner.

"It's pretty surreal," McCutcheon said. "I set the goal to become an NRHA Million Dollar Rider when I was 12. Not even I thought I would happen this fast. I couldn't have imagined a better year no matter how hard I tried. I was really lucky to have really good horses and even better customers supporting me this year."

McCutcheon's wins at the 2019 NRHA Futurity pushed him past the million-dollar mark by more than $70,000. For those who know McCutcheon, it's not surprising he reached a goal long before he planned. He originally set the goal of crossing the million dollar mark by his 25th birthday.

A horse named "Turbo" equipped 6-year-old McCutcheon with the need for speed and helped the young horseman build the work ethic he needed to become a horse trainer.

"I had a hard time getting him to lope," McCutcheon said of the gelding. "He'd always take me over to the gate. It took me about six months before I got him to finally lope. Once I got him lopeing, I never walked or trotted again."

Perhaps Turbo secured McCutcheon's fate to carry on the family legacy as an NRHA Professional. Or maybe it was simply bred into the third generation reiner from the get-go.

McCutcheon's first year as an NRHA Professional — 2019 — is hard work personified. Not only was he a Run for a Million Invitational co-champion, McCutcheon also topped the NRHA L3 Open Derby and placed first and second in three levels of the 2019 NRHA Futurity Open Finals.

“I was competing at the 2018 World Equestrian Games when I thought to myself ‘I can play with the big dogs,’” McCutcheon said. It was in that moment McCutcheon decided to officially take his riding to the next level as a professional.

Reaching the pinnacle of reining as a 19-year-old presents McCutcheon with a strong foundation to continue building on in 2020.

“There are a million people I could thank for this,” McCutcheon said. “I’ve been very lucky to have a good support system around me.”

McCutcheon’s 2019 NRHA Futurity Placings:

- Super Marioo (HA Chic A Tune x Gunnatrashya): L4-2 Open Champion
- Guns And Dynamite (Chic Olena Starbuck x Gunners Special Nite) L4 Open Co-Reserve Champion and L3-2 Open Reserve Champion
- Deja Vu With A Gun (Dun Its Déjà vu x Gunner) Open L4-2 Finalist

Founded in 1966, the National Reining Horse Association is a nonprofit association dedicated to promoting and encouraging the development of and public interest in the sport of reining. The focus is on developing and maintaining suitable standards of performance and judging and in providing a fun filled, family-oriented atmosphere.

NEW PODCAST FROM NRHA – IN OUR TRACKS

The National Reining Horse Association (NRHA) is proud to announce the launch of its new podcast, In Our Tracks. The new-media offering aims to honor the history of reining, discuss current events and trends, and look ahead at the opportunities this sport has in its future. In Our Tracks will present interviews with the legacy-makers, movers, and shakers from the reining industry as well as grassroots competitors and weekend warriors to offer insights from the full spectrum of the reining community.

In each monthly episode, listeners will meet NRHA Professionals, members of the NRHA Hall of Fame, those who serve on the NRHA Executive Committee and Board, plus hear about programs from NRHA staff.

“This is an exciting way to tell the stories of reining and its participants,” said Jennifer Paulson, host of In Our

Tracks and editorial and marketing consultant for NRHA. “Hearing these horsemen and -women tell their stories in their own words celebrates the sport’s legacy in an entertaining, educational manner.”

The podcast has launched with the introductory episode as well as an interview with NRHA President Mike Hancock who discusses his history with horses of all kinds and what he sees in the future for NRHA and reining. Look for episodes to come with NRHA Hall-of-Famers Tim and Colleen McQuay, the 2019 NRHA Toyon Ranch Rookie of the Year, National Reining Horse Youth Association (NRHyA) Past President Elizabeth Blaser, and many more.

You can find In Our Tracks on Apple Podcasts, SoundCloud, Spotify, TuneIn, and Pippa, as well as listen to it on nrha.com.

make for some fun times while each finalist draws a glass one-by-one to determine their running order. Who will get the first run of the finals? Come to the party to find out! Everyone is invited to attend.

And thanks to the creative enthusiasm of Markel, there is always something special to remember from the event. From a beautiful dessert display one year to amazing door prizes the next, the fun factor is definitely a key part of the event.

Markel Director of Western Disciplines and National Reining Horse Association Hall of Fame member, Frank Costantini has been a true NRBC fan and supporter for years and an integral part of the reining industry.

NRBC Secretary-Treasurer Cheryl Magoteaux Cody noted, "Frank's on site Markel team includes Non Pro reiners Chloe Lawrence and Karen Schedlauskas and the combined years of experience as reiners and business people has resulted in a remarkable pool of reining knowledge."

Costantini, with his years of experience a Non Pro, an owner, a NRHA Board member, Committee Member and Chair, donor, President, visionary - has made him a part of NRHA history and culture and has propelled Markel to an unmatched relationship. Cody continues, "We are thrilled that he chooses to support the NRBC, personally and as the leader of the Markel sponsorship team."

Frank added, "Markel is very fortunate to once again host the Non Pro Draw Party. We have been there for a number of years and we always try to come up with new and innovative ideas - come to the draw party this year to see what we can do to benefit reiners - everyone is invited to enjoy the festivities. Markel and the remarkable board and staff of the NRBC will always put our heads together to create something fun."

Not only does Markel sponsor the Non Pro Draw Party, it also awards the Markel Non Pro Commitment Award annually during the festivities. The announcement is always a surprise with only select NRBC staff and the Markel team knowing the new recipient for 2020.

With a long history of supporting the horse world in general and the reining industry in particular. Markel has insurance to fill all of your needs. For information on Markel Insurance, visit the booth at the NRBC and the website at <http://www.horseinsurance.com>.

SHINERS VOODOO DR REACHES MILLION DOLLAR SIRE MILESTONE

The newest addition to the National Reining Horse Association (NRHA) Million Dollar Sire list hails from Silver Spurs Equine – Oklahoma: Shiners Voodoo Dr. By NRHA Four Million Dollar Sire Shining Spark and out of Voodoo Chic, the 2007 palomino, fondly referred to as "Voodoo," earned more than $85,900 in NRHA Lifetime Earnings (LTE) during his show career.

Owner Michael Miola of Silver Spurs Equine, LLC, first laid on eyes on the stallion after he purchased Xtra Quarter Horses in 2017. Voodoo was one of three stallions Miola acquired in the purchase. For Miola, Voodoo's latest accomplishment isn't exactly surprising.

"I was extremely impressed with his demeanor," Miola said about meeting Voodoo. "One of the three things I look for in a breeding stallion is their demeanor."

This trait is followed by their work ethic in the show pen and attitude in the breeding shed. Voodoo continues to check all three boxes for Miola.

NRHA Professional Thiago Boechat trained and showed the stallion prior to Miola's purchase. The pair's most notable accomplishment was at the 2012 NRHA Derby where they were the Open Level(L) 4 Co-Reserve Champions. As a 3-year-old, Voodoo was the 2010 Tulsa Reining Classic L3-2 Open Champion in addition to making the Open L4 Finals at the NRHA Futurity. Miola admits Voodoo isn't known for his show career; the stallion shines brightest as a producer.

Shiners Voodoo Dr's top-performing offspring include:

- Xtra New Pal Voodoo (out of Wimpys New Pal, by Wimpys Little Step): $81,893 LTE
- Shiners Voodoo (out of BR China Rose, by Hollywood Dun It): $66,943 LTE
- Smart Voodoo Doctor (out of Smart As Sister, by Very Smart Remedy): $46,452 LTE
- Xtra Taris Voodoo (out of All That's Dun, by Hollywood Dun It):

$41,479 LTE

Xtra New Pal Voodoo, "Pal," is the only horse by the stallion Miola kept on the ranch. The winner of more than $81,800 in NRHA LTE, Pal transitioned to a career in team roping, proving the versatility of Voodoo's offspring.

- Call Me Mr Voodoo (out of ARC Sassy Snapper, by Snapper Call Bar): $40,454 LTE

During the 2019 NRHA Futurity, Voodoo's progeny earned more than $30,000 to push him across the million-dollar mark. Both Xtra Shiners Taboo (out of Xtra Suzies Step) and Magin Mann (out of Wimpys New Pal) walked away with checks after making the MS Diamonds TX Open L4 Finals. Also cashing checks at the NRHA Futurity were Xtra Handsome Shiner (out of Hermosa Wimpy), Xtra Voodoo Charm (out of Little Smart Wimpy), and Voodoo Brew

- Xtra Voodoo Gun (out of Miss Silver Gun, by Gunner): $38,098 LTE
- Xtra Voodoo Doc (out of Call Me Miss Hickory, by Docs Hickory): $37,719 LTE
- Blonde Ambishen (out of Relaxin With A Bud, by Nic It In The Bud): $37,691 LTE

SNIP O GUN JOINS ELITE NRHA MILLION DOLLAR DAM CLUB

The National Reining Horse Association (NRHA) is proud to recognize Snip O Gun as an NRHA Million Dollar Dam. Owned by Hilldale Farm, Snip O Gun is one of only three dams to produce offspring that reached the million-dollar earnings mark to date. She crossed the million-dollar milestone during the 2019 NRHA Futurity where her offspring earned more than $50,000.

Cash. Once he was done breeding, Hutton knew Snip would also cross well with Gunnatrashya and Colonels Shining Gun.

“Snip is just very calm, cool, and collected,” Hutton said. “I’m guessing if she would’ve had more than 30 days under saddle she would’ve been extremely athletic; she’s made for it. But she’s so laid back that you would’ve had to really ask her to do what you wanted; but that’s probably why she works so well on different stallions.”

Hutton said, “She’s round from the tip of her nose to the tip of her tail. She has a big, soft, intelligent eye. She has a pretty neck that ties into her shoulder perfectly. She has a lot of bone, substance, and depth.”

Perhaps it’s just personal bias, or it’s the bold-face truth, Hutton said she’d be hard-pressed to find a fault in the mare. In the end, it was Snip’s personality and demeanor that captured Hutton’s heart.

“She’s very sweet, quiet, and laid back,” Hutton said. “She likes to graze and be with her horse buddies, but she’s also the first one to the gate when I whistle.”

NATIONAL REINING BREEDERS CLASSIC WELCOMES GLYCOGUARD

In 2020, the NRBC welcomes Glycoguard back for the second consecutive year. “We are glad to have the support of this progressive company,” noted Cheryl Cody, NRBC Secretary-Treasurer. “Glycoguard representative Caitlyn Caldwell is a proponent of healthy horses – and of reining, so in just a short year, she has become a familiar face to many of our exhibitors.”

Originally marketed for foals, the usage propriety has been expanded and now when Glycoguard is given to adult horses, clients and vets are seeing dramatically improved digestion and nutrition absorption of feed. Many top reiners are using this product so it’s not surprising that Caldwell would choose to be a part of the NRBC.

She noted, “Glycoguard Gel is a proud supporter of the 2020 NRBC, and we want only the best for all the equine athletes. If you don’t have your Glycoguard yet, please contact me or find me at the show.”

Glycoguard is an oral activated microbial gel, containing the only direct-fed microbial B. Infantis and L. Plantarum. Glycoguard is the only product on the market with this strain of bacteria, which unlocks key nutrients and short-chain fatty acids.

Caldwell said, “Glycoguard is safe and fast-acting for horses of all ages. Competition horses undergo lots of stress whether it be travel, training or competing so make Glycoguard the first thing you reach for and remember a healthy gut is a happy horse/foal. It’s never too late to start Glycoguard.”

For information and to learn more about Glycoguard, visit the website at Glycoguard.com or contact Caitlyn via call or text at (610) 246-2073.

The National Reining Breeders Classic is a stallion enrollment program and show begun in 1997 by a far-sighted group of reiners to create a big-money event for horses after their futurity year. It succeeded far beyond anyone's expectations and the program has paid out over $22 Million in its history. For information visit nrbc.com.

REIN IN CANCER IS HERE TO HELP!

Since its inception in 2007, Rein In Cancer has raised hundreds of thousands of dollars for supporting care for cancer patients, helping to fund treatment and creating and contributing to the Shirley Bowman Nutrition Center at the Charles and Peggy Stephenson OU Cancer Institute in Oklahoma City.

It has become a staple in the equine industry and continues to give financial assistance to cancer patients who are part of the horse industry. A simple form can be faxed or emailed and often funds are usually dispatched within a day.

That's a point of pride for the organization, according to President Cheryl Magoteaux Cody, who helped found Rein in Cancer along with Shorty Koger and Tracie Anderson. "When someone is undergoing cancer treatment, their family has often gone from two paychecks to one or from one to none. But the bills continue to come in, especially when there is feed to be purchased, the farrier to be paid, or all of life's other expenses. We know that getting money to them quickly can make a huge difference!"

She continues, "We are here for the people in the horse world and we continue to spread the word. If someone is currently being treated for cancer, financial help is a few clicks away on the computer at reinincancer.com. We are glad to have the opportunity to help and we urge them to apply." To date, people from over 30 states and from 20 different disciplines have received assistance.

According to Cody, horse people are often the last to ask for help – even when it's desperately needed. "But you can be sure that when they do, their first goal is that when they get through their own fight, they want to give back to help others."

2020 NRCHA BOARD OF DIRECTORS DETERMINED

The National Reined Cow Horse Association membership has elected four representatives to the NRCHA board of directors. Paul Bailey, Todd Bergen, Diane Edwards and Jon Roeser will volunteer their time and knowledge to serve on NRCHA's governing body.

Paul Bailey, Sparta, Tennessee, has served on the NRCHA board for seven years, serving as the association's vice president. NRCHA Two Million Dollar Rider Todd Bergen will be returning to the board. Bergen has previously served as president and is currently the co-chairperson of the show committee. NRCHA Hall of Fame member Jon Roeser, Kuna, Idaho, has devoted his professional career to the growth, integrity and success of the organization. NRCHA non pro committee chairperson Diane Edwards, Maple Valley, Washington, was also re-elected.

Positions that will remain in office for 2020: Dr. Joe Carter, Todd Crawford, Corey Cushing, Amanda Gardiner, Boyd Rice, Dan Roeser, Jake Telford and Cayley Wilson.

The board of directors consists of 12 elected and appointed members. The NRCHA board of directors will meet in Fort Worth, Texas, before the start of the Celebration of Champions, to elect officers (President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer) and Executive Committee members. At the conclusion of officer elections, the new president may appoint up to four additional board members they feel would best represent the general membership and uphold the goals and values of the association.

Following the February board meeting, a complete list of officers will be available at NRCHA.com.

2020 NRCHA RULE BOOK CHANGES

Members should take notice of the new classes and rule changes in the 2020 NRCHA rule book. The membership is encourage to read and review the rule book on a regular basis. Below notes the important changes for the 2020 show season.

- Non pro status surrender / inquires / revocation / disciplinary action protocol has been updated. See rules 2.5 - 2.5.4 on page 20.

- Beginning Fence Work is an approved NRCHA class. See class rules 3.12 - 3.12.5 on pages 25 and 26. See judging rules 19.6 - 19.6.6.5 on pages 82 and 83.

- Youth Bridle is now a youth fence class. Age-appropriate equipment is acceptable. See rule 3.7.3 on page 23.

- Horse substitution in a horse show class after the draw is now an option. See rule 9.8 on page 38.

- Show approval fees are now retained by the NRCHA. See rule 12.1.10 on page 49.

THE ROLLBACK

Take a step back in time with THE ROLLBACK! Beginning in 2020, each issue will feature a bit of reining history through articles WorldWide Slide owner Cheryl Magoteaux Cody has written covering the events, the people, the skills and the art of reining. It's a chance to remember when...

This feature about starting two-year-olds with Brent Loseke was printed in the September 1999 issue of Performance Horse.

TWO-YEAR-OLD TIME With Brent Loseke

by Cheryl Magoteaux

He started 1998 National Reining Horse Association Futurity Champion Chic Please, and 1997 NRHA Derby Limited Open Champion Chocolate Chic Olena, and rode Shining Spark and a host of other big winners as two-year-olds. The "go-to" guy for starting world-class reining and cutting horses, Brent Loseke, of Gainesville, Texas, has strong convictions about the first year of training.

Traditional horse training technique has often held that a horse's "real" education begins after the two-year-old year. Anyone could get a two-year-old started, and ride him that first year, as long as an "A-Team" trainer took him from there. But more and more top trainers are learning that the two-year-old year is the most critical time in a young horse's development. If he's not given the right foundation, he might never reach his potential!

"And in that tremendously important first year, the most critical time is the first quarter," says Brent Loseke. He feels that some people try to make a 90-day-wonder emerge after three months of riding. In short, they get in a hurry.

Loseke continues, "I think the biggest mistake is that, instead of getting them to be good transportation, people try to teach them to do more complicated things."

His goal, for that first three months, is to simply teach the young horse to "go from point A to point B."

In Brent's program, it all begins in the round pen. "The first day I'll put the pad and the saddle and cinch the colt up. There are usually two of us, one holding and one saddling. I start all the colts with a back cinch even though we don't usually use them on reining saddles. If they learn about the back cinch from the beginning, it's no big deal."

The back cinch also stabilizes the saddle for the colt that's not used to wearing one.

Brent continues, "We get the saddle secure, then we'll work them around the pen, let them play until they get used to the saddle and level out. Then, we'll unsaddle and put away."

The second day begins the same, although Brent will usually get on the colts on that day.

He does his riding with a rope hackamore for about the first 90 days, then switches to the O-ring snaffle.

Once he mounts the horse, he refrains from asking too much. "The goal is to get them used to carrying a person around. I don't want to tell them where to go, at first. The round pen will do that."

Through the next couple of days, he'll begin to pull the colt around to give direction, always with his hands far to the outside. "That's important," he explains. "With a hackamore, if you just pick up on one side or another, it will all feel the same to the colt. To make the cue easier to understand, you'll really exaggerate pulling out to the side."

After three or four days, as soon as he feels the colt understands at least the rudiments of the cues, he'll move to the outdoor arena, "to give us more room."

Downshifting

Of vital importance, according to Loseke, is that the horse's reward or release must come when he is doing the right thing, not when he's resisting. Here Loseke asks the colt to back, then...

...releases him while he is still soft and going back. His reward comes when he's still performing correctly.

Although he doesn't drill a youngster on making big stops, Brent spends a lot of time perfecting what he calls "downshifting."

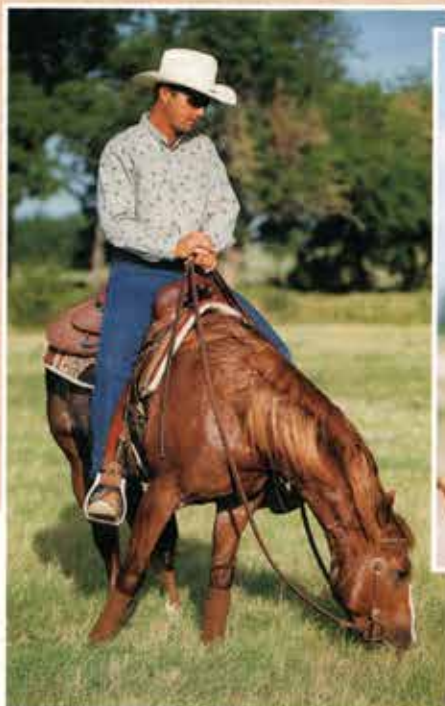

"I want to be able to lope along, with loose reins and then slowly pick up the reins and as soon as the horse feels the pickup he should break down to the next slower gait."

The instant he feels the change in momentum, Brent releases the pressure. "The moment I feel them break down, I want to give them total release — that means the hand goes back down to the neck."

A couple of months of this, and horses begin to, in Brent's words, "crave stopping rather than having to be forced."

He adds, "The downshift deal is always from a lope to a trot or trot to a walk — even on the ones that really want to stop, I'll downshift more often than stopping."

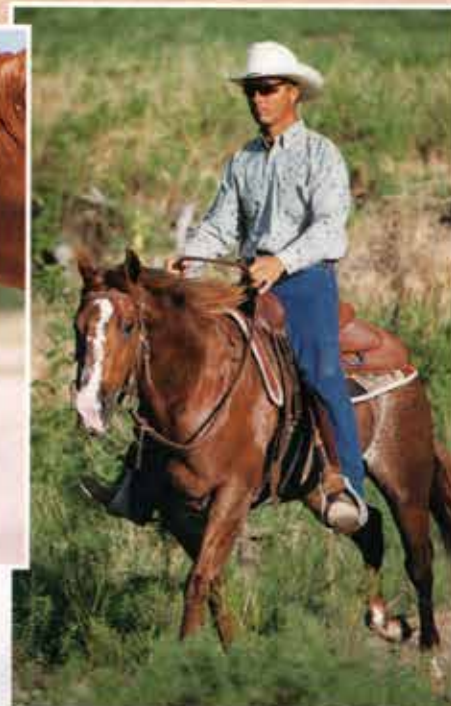

He cautions, "Remember — be slow to pick up, and quick to release" and adds, "you also need to make sure the release comes when they're still soft, no matter what you're doing. For example, if you're backing a horse up, and he's moving backwards, release while he's still in motion going back. The absolute wrong thing to do is to keep the pressure on until he stops going back, then release. If you do that, you taught him wrong."

Lots of time in the saddle, with plenty of low pressure activities, is a plus.

The first 30 days Brent uses a rope hackamore, then switches to a snaffle bit.

"Riding two-year-olds out in the open helps them learn to think and be responsible for where they place their feet."

There, the learning process continues. "I still let them go where they want to a lot of the time, but I begin to ask them to go where I want to go, as well. If we're in a big circle, to the right, for example, I'll ask the horse to go to the left, by pulling with my hand way out to the side.

"Some of the colts really grasp this concept, quickly, and begin to follow my hand even before they feel any pressure."

As soon as the colt feels "safe," Brent leaves the confines of the arena.

"When I feel I have a little control in a big pen, I go out into the field. I like to get out of the corral as quickly as I can safely. I like to take those young horses out into the open."

From then on, the first 90 days is a time of learning to go forward and beginning to understand a set of basics. The colt learns a work ethic – accepts the fact that he will go out and learn to take direction each day. Then he begins to understand that the rider's cues – pulling on the rein, pushing with the leg – will cease if he does what the rider wants.

"If I ask him to do something and he responds correctly, he gets a release from pressure, immediately. Soon, he is less and less stressed by the cues and increasingly quick at making the correct response."

Brent points to the advantage of the wide open spaces. "When I get to the point that I'm loping, I can lope three or four hundred yards in a straight line."

Having that freedom early takes care of horses wanting to speed up later on.

"A lot of those colts want to move on out – and I'll just let them go fast. I'm not concerned because I want them to learn there's no future in running off. There's no escape at the end. The nice thing about two-year-olds is that they're not physically capable of going that long. They're not used to carrying your weight and they're not that strong, yet. In five to ten minutes, they're usually out of air and looking for a place to stop. When the colt gets to the point where he's slowing down, I'll push him just a little further, then let him stop. This will work pretty easy with a two-year-old, but if you were to wait and do this with a three-year-old, the horse would be stronger and it would take a lot more work."

At the end of 90 days, the young horse will be giving to pressure from the rein, but Brent explains, "I want lateral movement to come with feet. By that I mean, if I pull on the rein, I want the horse's head to come and then his feet to follow."

He adds, "Although a lot of people bit those horses up or tie their heads around as a matter of course, I don't. Instead, I'll wait and do that only if their actions tell me it's needed. If I'm riding and, for example, I ask the horse to give his head to the right and he resists and sticks it to the left, I'll tie his head over before he is unsaddled."

The colts themselves hold the key for each days training for Loseke. "Each day the two-year-old tells me what we need to do."

He explains, "I like to ride out in the open and I like to ride a lot of straight lines. When I start out on a colt each day, I'll usually take off in a trot in a long straight line, on a loose rein."

Then, he pays careful attention.

"If the colt thinks he should be going back to the barn, and shows that, we will definitely go all the way to the far end of the property. If he would rather duck to the left than go in that straight line, then we'll go forward and somewhat off to the right."

The Payoff?

"If I approach each day with this mentality, pretty soon the colt will come out and wait for instructions from me, rather than thinking he can tell me where he is going."

What marks a horse as a favorite – the one he wants to ride – in the first 90 days?

"A lot of things, I guess. One that's a really pretty mover, that is picking up guiding really neat; I really like the horse that understands you're telling him where to go and he happily goes along with it. The bottom line is, the really natural, fancy ones usually present themselves early."

But he warns not to give up on one prematurely. "For example, when we first started

Moving out is easy when there's plenty of wide open space.

Loseke starts all his two-year-olds – even reiners – on cattle. "It gives them a reason to do the maneuvers!"

The two-year-old shown in these pictures is typical of the talented youngsters Loseke trains. By Smart Little Lena and out of Gay Sugar Chic, this Acee-owned colt is a full brother to Smart Chic Olena.

with Chocolate Chic Olena, he was even a problem to get his feet trimmed as a two-year-old, and Chic Please bucked the rider off the first day!"

The Second 90 Days

After the first 90 days, Brent will likely move the young horse into a snaffle bit. He laughs, "I like using a hackamore early because sometimes you have to pull hard to save your life, and with a hackamore, you don't pull on their mouths!"

When it's time to go to a bit, "I'll hang a snaffle in his mouth in his stall (a little low so he can pick it up and hold it) and let him get used to it."

Since the colt already has a foundation of pressure and release, on the day he's planning to introduce the snaffle, Brent will ride with the hackamore until he's just about ready to quit for the day. Then, he'll change to the BRENT LOSEKE (pronounced "low ski", like opposite of high and what people do on the slopes) was raised in Nebraska and was the only one of four children who liked horses. He started riding and progressed from gymkhana events to riding pleasure horses at AQHA Shows, where he got to know Jim Brinkman. The meeting resulted in his spending the next three summers during high school on the Pitzer Ranch.

There, he learned to rope and by the second year was showing rope horses.

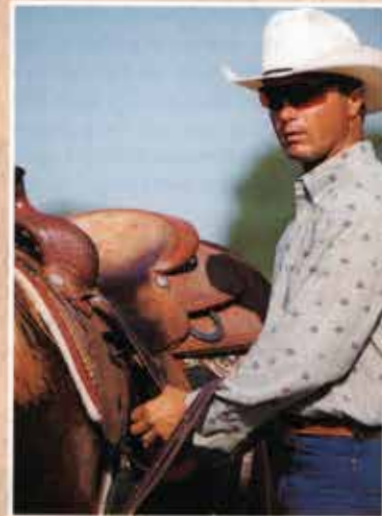

After studies at University of Nebraska, he went to work for Mark Chestnut (then from Canton, Kansas) and rode cutters for the next two and a half years. "Mark taught me more than anyone. I thought I knew a lot but found out how green I was!"

Stints with John Wilkins, Bronc Willoughby, and Dee Burney followed. Then he went to work on Carol Rose's ranch for Guy Woods. He left after a couple of years to go to Brazil and work for Macario Perez, the Brazilian Quarter Horse Association president, who was a devoted cutting enthusiast.

Not only did he enjoy the time spent there, he also met and married his wife, Paula, and the couple now have two children, Alex (two) and Meleena (seven).

Brent and Paula Loseke

When he came back stateside, he worked again on the Rose Ranch. By the beginning of 1998, when he was ready to go out on his own, he knew he wanted to focus his business on starting really good reining and cutting prospects and the Brent Loseke Colt Company was born. Success from his young proteges has followed, along with achievement in the breeding end of the business. Brent was the leading reining breeder and the second leading cow horse breeder for 1998.

snaffle for the last ten minutes. The idea here is that the colt is already relaxed and already in the work mode. "I'm just going to ask them to continue what they've been doing and see if they understand how to give to pressure with this new apparatus."

The horse has learned to give to pressure and move laterally, and the next step is to give to the bridle. "When I take the slack out of the reins and push him forward with my legs, I want to really feel them give to the bridle."

It's confusing at first to the young horse, but he knows to move forward and he's soft side to side, so after a few tries he can learn how to get a release with this new cue. He begins to learn collection.

"I like to start them on cattle in late spring or early summer. I think it's fun for them. I'll just ride along behind the cow and pretend there's a rope tied from the cow's tail to the horse's nose. The horse learns to watch the cow and follow right behind."

Later on, the horse's position will be changed – more out to the side of the cow, but the horse will still be asked to mirror what the cow does.

"I like working cattle on the two-year-olds. I think it gives me an excuse that they understand, to ask them for intensity. I think it matures them and gives them confidence."

The Third 90 Days

By summer the repetition has allowed the cues to become more subtle. Now, instead of pulling out to the side, a pickup on the rein accomplishes the same thing.

Instead of just being asked to lope, the horse is expected to differentiate between lead cues. By late summer or early fall, the horse is learning to move his hip over as a foundation for lead changes. "I'll push first with my calf, then increase the pressure until I'm applying pressure with the spur. As soon as I feel his hip move over, I release the pressure."

The foundation was laid earlier for the turnaround, and during this quarter this maneuver progresses by repetition.

A fence or other obstacle is an aid in early introduction of the turnaround. "I'll break the horse down to a stop, about six or eight feet from the fence, then turn the horse toward the fence. He understands lateral move – nose goes, feet go – and the fence will help turn him. I'll lope out of the turn. I think horses learn to move faster if they know they have somewhere to go after the turn and if he knows he gets to go somewhere after the turn, he'll figure a way to get his feet in position."

Once the horse is good at a 180 degree turn, Brent turns the horse to the outside, away from the fence or barrier, for the first 180, then on against the fence to complete the 360.

The Fourth 90 Days

One of the best things the trainer can do, in Loseke's opinion, is to resist temptation to step up the program in the last 90 days. The goal instead should be to build the horse's confidence.

Brent explains, "You want them thinking that they can do everything you ask, that it's easy. During that last four months, we'll go more miles and just let them get more and more confident. I don't ask them for all their tricks every day; I just want to go a lot of miles without man versus horse. Plus, if I'm training the horse for someone else, I don't want to go too far. I think a lot of finished work is an individual deal."

Most people can adapt Loseke's two-year-olds into their particular program – from the West Coast really bridled style to the more natural. "It might be harder for those colts to adjust if I tried to put too much finish on them at that point. Either way, I think it's an error to ask too much as a two-year-old." He cautions that people should remember the mental immaturity of this age horse and give him time to mature.

By end of the year Brent's colts will have some sort of headset. "They can go pushed up into the bridle, looking a little stylish, but I'm not worried about getting their heads up or down. The main thing is that they should keep their heads in position, soft, and guide where I want to go."

He continues, "I don't teach circles per se. I do work on guiding. I'll point a colt toward an obstacle on the far end of the field, start him loping toward it and drop the reins. He should head directly where I aimed him and keep going that way until he's given different instructions. If, when I drop the reins, he drifts one way or another, he's not mentally guiding. He should stay on the line until I tell him differently."

"Even if I think he's going to make an error, I'll release those reins and give him a chance to make a mistake. If he ducks off to the right, I pick him up and direct him farther to the left than I did originally."

Brent adds, "Craig Johnson told me once he gets excited when a horse makes a mistake because he has an opportunity to fix it. The horse making a mistake is positive because that's how horses learn, so we're closer to getting them trained."

That positive mindset is a reflection of Loseke's attitude toward the training process. And, for him, the mistakes, the day to day repetition, the countless hours in the saddle, are just steps toward the goal of producing the Brent Loseke Colt Company's number one product – a three-year-old that's ready to fulfill great potential. ■
